The little horse

One day, a little horse carries a big bag to the mill (磨坊). There is a river in front of him. The little horse is worried. He asks a cow nearby, "Is the river deep, Mrs Cow? Can I cross (穿过) it?" Mrs Cow answers, "It's very shallow (浅). It just reaches my knees (膝盖)."

The little horse is ready to cross the river. Then a squirrel (松鼠) shouts to him, "Stop! The river is very deep. My friend drowned (淹死了) in it last year (去年)."

The little horse does not know what to do. He goes home to ask his mum. She says, "Don't just listen to others, dear. You can try for yourself (你自己)."

The little horse comes back to the river. He walks carefully into the river. The water reaches his body. It is not shallow, but it is not deep either.

The old man and his monkeys

An old man keeps a lot of monkeys. These monkeys do not like eating bananas. They like eating chestnuts (栗子).

One day, the old man says to the monkeys, "We don't have many chestnuts now. Each (每个) of you can have seven chestnuts every day. Is that OK?" The monkeys are very happy because they can eat chestnuts every day. Then, the old man says, "You can have three chestnuts in the morning and four in the evening." The monkeys are not happy. They do not want to eat one less (少) in the morning. The old man then says, "How about four in the morning and three in the evening?" The monkeys are happy again because they think they can eat one more (多) in the morning.

- 1 The monkeys like both bananas and chestnuts.
- 2 The monkeys are happy because they can eat seven chestnuts every day.
- 3 The monkeys are not happy because they can only have four chestnuts every morning.
- 4 In the end, the old man has to give each monkey eight chestnuts every day.
- 5 The monkeys are good at maths.

The tomato fight (西红柿大战)

People in Spain (西班牙) love tomatoes very much. They even fight with tomatoes.

The tomato fight comes on the last (最后的) Wednesday of August (八月). On that day, people prepare lots of tomatoes in the street. The fight begins at 11 o'clock in the morning. Before throwing (投掷) tomatoes, people always crush (捏碎) them so others will not get hurt (受伤). They usually wear goggles (护目镜) and gloves too. People enjoy the fight. Soon, they have tomato juice all over their bodies. The street also becomes red with tomato juice. The fight goes on for about an hour. After the fight, people use water to clean the street and themselves.

Does the tomato fight sound fun to you?
Maybe you can go to Spain and join the fight one day.

- 1 People in Spain do not eat tomatoes.
- 2 There is a tomato fight every year in Spain.
- 3 Many people get hurt in the tomato fight.

My favourite festival by Betty

The Spring Festival is also called Chinese New Year. It is my favourite Chinese festival because I always have a lot of fun.

At the Spring Festival, I go to my grandparents' home with my parents, my uncle and aunt and my cousin. My grandparents always cook a lot of yummy food for us and we have a big dinner together. My grandparents also give me and my cousin red packets (红包).

After dinner, the elders (长辈) usually watch TV. Sometimes they play mahjong (麻将) or chat in the living room. My cousin and I often light fireworks and firecrackers (燃放烟花爆竹) to welcome the New Year. That is great fun. Everyone has a good time at the Spring Festival.

A pleasant surprise (惊喜)

by Ann

My father is a teacher. He teaches English at a primary school. He works very hard.

My father's birthday is on the fourth of July. My mother and I want to give him a surprise.

It is six o'clock in the evening. It is time for my father to come home. My mother and I turn off the lights (灯) and hide (躲藏) in the kitchen. When my father comes in, I turn on the lights. My mother puts a birthday cake on the table. We say "Happy Birthday!" to him. My father is very happy but surprised. "Thank you very much. Is today my birthday?" My mother looks at the calendar (日历). "Oh, dear! It's the fourth of June. I made a mistake (错误)." My father laughs and says, "Thank you for your mistake. I can eat two birthday cakes this year."
